

Voting Made Easy – In Seven Languages

New citizens and others whose primary language is Spanish, Chinese, Japanese, Korean, Tagalog or Vietnamese will find everything they need to be active voters on the Secretary of State's "New Voters" page, at www.sos.ca.gov/elections/new-voter/.

Secretary of State Debra Bowen is asking businesses, chambers of commerce, nonprofit organizations, health care clinics and agencies that serve the communities where these languages are spoken to join her in spreading the word about this valuable new resource in one or more of the following ways:

- Add a MyVote button to your website. The buttons and instructions for linking them to each of the seven "New Voters" pages are available on page two here, and at www.sos.ca.gov/elections/new-voter/.
- Translate and send the following sample article or message:

New Voters Find Help Online In Seven Languages

Voting is one of the most important things we do as citizens in a democracy. As California's chief elections officer, Secretary of State Debra Bowen encourages every eligible citizen to register to vote and participate in elections. To help meet the needs of new citizens and others who prefer to vote in Spanish, Chinese, Japanese, Korean, Tagalog or Vietnamese, the Secretary has introduced a set of "New Voters" web pages in all these languages, plus English. There, you will find a voter registration form, advice on what to bring with you when you go to vote, instructions on how to vote by mail, and other useful voter information.

To learn more about voting and elections, visit the "New Voters" page at www.sos.ca.gov/elections/new-voter/, or call the Secretary of State's Voter Hotline: [add one of the "800" numbers shown below].
